Date: May 29, 2012

A PROPOSAL FROM THE COUNCIL ON ACADEMIC AFFAIRS TO CHANGE THE NAME OF THE DEPARTMENT OF ART EDUCATION TO THE DEPARTMENT OF ARTS ADMINISTRATION, EDUCATION, AND POLICY, WITH A RELATED NAME CHANGE FOR THE DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY DEGREE PROGRAM, COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

WHEREAS art education, and other visual arts programs, have a more than century-long history at the University, and over time have been organized in different and changing administrative structures; and the Department of Art Education was established in 1971, but although the practices and contents of art education have changed the name did not change to adequately reflect those changes; and

WHEREAS the proposal reflects and recognizes developments in the academic, policy, and arts organizational worlds, and combines them with an enlarged sense of what it means to build knowledge and prepare future generations to teach, shape, and practice the arts in the 21st century; and the Department will continue to prepare teachers through its accredited state licensure program; and

WHEREAS the faculty within the Department considered other names but came to consensus and voted to support the proposed name; and

WHEREAS the proposal for the related name change for the Doctor of Philosophy degree program was approved by the Graduate Council; and

WHEREAS the proposal has support from academic units across the University; and

WHEREAS the proposal was approved by the Council on Academic Affairs at its meeting on May 16, 2012;
NOW THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED that the University Senate approve the proposal to change the name of the Department of Art Education to the Department of Arts Administration, Education, and Policy, with a related name change for the Doctor of Philosophy degree program; and respectfully request approval from the Board of Trustees.
Hello, Valarie –

In December, you requested concurrence from the College of Education and Human Ecology as the Department of Art Education seeks to change its name to the “Department of Arts Administration, Education and Policy.” As you know, one of our college’s units is the School of Educational Policy and Leadership. We anticipate that this unit will change its name soon to “Educational Studies,” and one of the sections within that unit is likely to become “Educational Administration and Policy.”

In the spirit of cooperation, I am pleased to grant concurrence for your proposed departmental name change. Provided you have no objections, I would like to ask for your help as well when our anticipated name changes move forward.

Thank you,
Cheryl

Dear Randy and Elliot,

The Department of Art Education has submitted a request for a name change from its current title of Department of Art Education to the Department of Arts Administration, Education and Policy.

The faculty within the department have considered multiple names, different versions of the name, and after much discussion have come to consensus. The faculty within the department voted in favor of the name change to Department of Arts Administration, Education and Policy, with changes for its PhD program and several Book 3 Listing changes. Following previous practices, we are submitting them simultaneously to the Graduate School and CAA for consideration.

Currently, the department offers degrees in Arts Management, Art Education, Arts Policy and Administration, and a PhD that can focus on various aspects within the arts. The change in the department name is accompanied by a request for a change in the PhD degree and a change in the Book 3 Listings.

On behalf of the Department of Art Education, I am submitting the following:
- Letter of request for the name change from Deborah Smith-Shank, Professor and Departmental Chair
- Enclosure outlining the name change, the PhD name change, and the Book 3 Listing changes
- Jointly signed supporting letter from Joe Steinmetz, Executive Dean, College of Arts and Sciences and Mark Shanda, Dean, Arts and Humanities

Thank you for your consideration of this request,

Valarie Williams, Professor of Dance

Rationale for Name Change: Department of Art Education to Arts Administration, Education & Policy

The Department of Art Education requests that its name be changed to Arts Administration, Education & Policy. The new name represents more accurately the courses, scholarship, and practices that are currently being conducted within the department to educate art teachers, arts administrators, and arts policy makers.

Our degrees in Arts Management, Arts Policy and Administration, and Art Education, an undergraduate minor in Arts Entrepreneurship, and graduate specializations in both Museum Education and Material Culture all lead toward a broad and interdisciplinary understanding of the arts as cultural phenomena. The department provides multiple traditional, on-line, and field education experiences which facilitate our students’ acquiring leadership positions throughout the international art world in multiple types of venues related to the arts. We believe that the title Art Education connotes a narrow vision of our work and does not reflect the breadth of the activities within the department.

A brief history*: The Department of Art Education shares its early history with the university’s other visual arts programs, in particular the drawing area, which joined the College of Education in 1907. The Department of Fine Arts was formed in 1922, and in 1923 visiting artist James Hopkins became its chair. In 1944, this department became the School of Fine and Applied Arts and was renamed the School of Art in 1962. In 1968, the School of Art was disbanded and reorganized as four divisions with the College of the Arts: Art, Art Education, History of Art, and Industrial Design. The Division of Art Education became the Department of Art Education in 1971, and unfortunately while the practices and contents of art education have changed, the connotation of the name has not. In 1995, the head of the Getty Foundation presented a lecture on art education policy and this was the impetus for partnering with what is now the Glenn School to develop the Masters in Arts Policy and Administration. Since the mid-1990s, there has been a growing recognition that policy concerning the arts is not limited to public arts funding but to host of other issues including globalization and international cultural relations, technology, globalization and the creative trades, urban development and creative cities initiatives, the arts and heritage preservation, etc. We directly address these contemporary cultural issues in our programs and believe that the new name is descriptive of the changes our department has made since it was first named in 1907.

The Department of Art Education does continue to focus on visual art education, and we do educate teachers for pre-kindergarten to 12th grade in traditional public funded schools through our accredited state licensure program. However we also seek to collaborate with other arts disciplines, acknowledge the multiple institutions and venues where the arts are taught, experienced, and learned including (but not limited to) community centers, museums, hospitals, extended care facilities, prisons, etc. We do not believe that art can be understood without also understanding the social and economic context in which it is conceptualized, created, critiqued, organized, maintained, disseminated, and for which advocacy is essential.

The current proposal for the departmental name change reflects and recognizes the gradual development in the academic, policy, and arts organizational worlds and combines with an enlarged sense of what it means to build knowledge and prepare the future generations to teach, shape, and practice the arts in the 21st century. For these reasons we request that our name be formally changed from the Department of Art Education to Arts Administration, Education & Policy.

Dear Deans Williams, Heysel, and Shanda,

The Art Education tenured and tenure track faculty met to vote on a new name this afternoon and the vote was unanimous except for one negative vote. The newly proposed name is:

Arts Administration, Education & Policy

If you are in agreement, we would love to go forward toward making this a permanent change. Please advise.

Thank you very much for your support and encouragement.

Debbie

B. Announcements – Dean Pat Osmer

School’s placement database on academic and nonacademic positions. Professor Brintlinger will be convening small faculty groups to discuss how programs can better prepare their students for careers after graduation.

• The Graduate School is celebrating its 100th anniversary year at Ohio State. Events are being planned to highlight the Graduate School’s history and current initiatives. Some events include: announcement in the OSUToday and OSUWeekly publications, an information letter from Dean Osmer will be included in the commencement booklet, and each graduate will receive a special notice in his or her diploma. A memento, such as a

C. Business

1. Associate Dean Herness gave an overview of the university and enrichment fellowship competitions saying that more than 1,000 nominations (and more than 4,000 nomination folders) were submitted for the competition and that the two committees are reviewing the files. Dean Herness reminded Council that the fellowship competition is being conducted in a similar manner as last year but that he is evaluating ways to streamline the process for next year. He said that the numbers of fellowships to be awarded has been increased from last year. Professor Newell questioned if the enrichment committee had been given a standard definition of diversity prior to the review. Dean Herness said the committee will be comparing its definition to the CIC and other Big-10 institutions and that they try to establish good procedures for the review process. Dean Herness said that each nomination is randomly assigned to four different reviewers and that the committee is sufficiently experienced to be able to identify academically strong students even though they are in different fields. He asked Council to send him their comments on ways to improve the fellowship process. Dean Herness said that he is compiling feedback and suggestions about the fellowship competition and the entire process will be reviewed before the next one in 2013.

Professor Oberdick asked about the efforts to recruit the Summer Research Opportunities program (SROP) students. Dean Osmer said that a data review of the SROP program is being conducted this year and that there seems to be a problem whereby some programs who mentor SROP students aren’t admitting them into their programs. Professor Bonello asked about the quality of the SROP students and Dean Osmer said that he would ask Cyndi Freeman, director, Diversity Graduate Student Recruitment and Diversity Initiatives, to present an analysis of the SROP data collected during the last 5 years. Dean Osmer also said that, so far, 2 of the 7 SROP students who were offered SROP Fellowships have accepted the fellowship for autumn semester.

2. Council approved the draft wording for the Graduate School Handbook changing the rule stating that both a written and oral portion of the second candidacy exam be required. The new rule will state that only the oral portion of the second candidacy exam will need to be repeated if the performance on the first written exam is of high caliber. Professor Lynley asked if there is a minimum amount of time required before the second exam can take place. Dean Osmer said that the Graduate School has no time requirement and that it is up to the department to determine when the student is ready for the second attempt.

3. Ally Fry, chair of the Council of Graduate Students (CGS) Academic Relations Committee, presented the latest draft of the Graduate Advising Best Practices report. She said that the overall goal of the report is to highlight the best practices that can help faculty and graduate students work together. Ally said that she had reviewed ~25 graduate program handbooks. Assistant Dean Salimbene said that another section should be added to the report to include action items for graduate program, such as speaking with their students yearly. Dean Osmer said that the report, when finished, can be presented at the next quarterly meeting. Associate Dean Herness recommended that the language in the report be kept more positive and Council agreed that a final edit is needed. Ally asked Council to send her their comments and suggestions about the report and on the best way to move forward. Ally’s e-mail address is (fry.228).

4. Associate Dean Herness reported that the Graduate School’s time requirement (4 hours in length) for the non-thesis option of the master’s exam has never been reviewed. Tim Watson, director, Graduation Services, says that approximately 80% of the 115 master’s programs are most likely using the non-thesis option but he felt that the programs should be surveyed to determine how the policy is being interpreted. Professor Rojas said that the four-hour requirement is unmanageable in some of the larger programs in the College of Engineering where a program can have several hundred master’s degree students. Dean Osmer suggested that Council members form a committee to conduct a poll and review the issue.
D. Graduate Council Curriculum Committee Reports and Actions
— Enrico Bonello, Liaison

1. Proposal to change the name of the Department of Art Education to Arts Administration, Education and Policy

- Professor Bonello explained the reason and rational for the program’s name change and answered questions. He said that the name change had concurrence from several colleges and numerous programs and that it corresponds with the name of the Ph.D. program. The name change proposal was approved by Graduate Council. The proposal will be forwarded to the Council on Academic Affairs for further processing.

Associate Dean Herness reported that several new graduate programs had been approved by the Council on Academic Affairs and were also approved by the University Senate at its February 16, 2012, meeting. The programs are:

- Ph.D. program in the Department of African-American and African Studies
- Italian Ph.D. program in the Department of French and Italian
- Portuguese graduate degree program in the Department of Spanish and Portuguese
- Name change of the Department of Greek and Latin to the Department of Classics

Dean Herness said that each of the above programs will next be reviewed by the Board of Trustees and concurrently will be sent on to a statewide review by the Ohio Board of Regents Review Advisory Committee on Graduate Study (RACGS).

Professor Newell adjourned the meeting at 4:26 p.m.
